Alluvionic and Millennium Benefit from Strategic Partnership Consultants and Client Connect at NASA Tech Expo

Alluvionic, an innovative solutions provider that services clients through project management, process improvement and engineering product design, successfully fast-tracked a promising and productive strategic partnership thanks to their participation in the Economic Development Commission of Florida's Space Coast's (EDC) Technology Docking program. Alluvionic was one of five companies selected to participate in the program, which affords them access to a NASA subject matter expert to explore and solve technology challenges. By being a part of this program, Alluvionic was invited to attend the NASA Tech Expo and have a booth.

While attending a NASA Tech Expo, Alluvionic connected with Millennium Engineering and Integration Company (Millennium), a national engineering services and unique hardware/software products firm with an office in Melbourne, Florida. As a result, Alluvionic is now working with Millennium to conduct Capability Maturity Model Integration (CMMI) Health Checks and three-year appraisal support. These health checks will support Millennium as they continue on their project management and engineering process improvement journey. By periodically reviewing their processes and compliance, they will become more efficient and effective within their projects and ensure a successful SCAMPI® appraisal when it is time for renewal.

“The Technology Docking program and NASA Expo not only provided us with subject matter experts, it provided an opportunity to develop new client partnerships as well,” explains Wendy Romeu, Founder and CEO of Alluvionic. “Our relationship with Millennium speaks to the importance and impact of the Technology Docking program and the NASA Expo. We are pleased to have an opportunity to work with Millennium in advancing their overall business objectives and look forward to expanding our client relationship.”

“Millennium is excited to work with such a dynamic local company to assist us with process improvement initiatives for our CMMI-DEV Maturity Level 3 appraised product development system. Annual health checks of these critical processes will ensure success for our customers and in our next appraisal,” says Tina Leighty, Director of Quality for Millennium.
